

CAPTURING OPPORTUNITIES IN THE C-STORE PREPARED FOODS CHANNEL Completed January 2021

It's not too soon to consider the longer-term effects on convenience store foodservice after the pandemic passes. Convenience stores have weathered the crisis impressively by tightening and improving cleaning, personal hygiene and store sanitation procedures. C-stores are seeing consumers revert to recession behaviors - such as single trips for multiple items.

To provide suppliers with the intelligence to revise business strategies, Foodservice IP (FSIP) has completed Capturing Opportunities in the C-Store Prepared Foods Channel During Covid-19.

SCOPE AND OBJECTIVES

- Shopper survey of 500 heavy-to-moderate foodservice users to assess buying behavior, attitudes, perceptions and demographics.
- 150 Operator interviews (major c-store chains with foodservice, as well as high-volume independents) to determine best-in-class suppliers, unmet needs, gross margins, support required from the channel, etc.
- Comprehensive assessment of the c-store foodservice channel with identification of key shifts since 2016, 2018 and marketplace trends.
- Purchasing behavior/frequency for c-store foodservice products.
- Current and future success factors, growth opportunities, and recommended action steps for manufacturers
